Andrew Holmes

Chief Technology Officer

Andrew Holmes has worked in complex programme delivery and management consulting for over 30 years. Beginning his career in management consulting, with Sema Group he supported Transco in the successful delivery of Domestic Competition. At Ernst & Young, he delivered a global data integrity programme for UBS following its merger with Warburg, and also ran the global programme management office for Year 2000 (Y2K).

For PwC, he rebuilt consulting activities in finance function and IT effectiveness and programme and change management, delivering complex IT programmes for BP Finance, National Express, Rolls Royce Marine, AOL Europe amongst others.

Most recently he worked at Silicon Valley Bank (SVB) across the global enterprise to structure, troubleshoot and deliver complex programmes and strategic initiatives. Specifically, he ran the programme which resulted in the launching of the UK branch of SVB, its first ever full-service banking branch outside of the US. Following this launch he was instrumental in completing the early phases of work associated with establishing SVB's German branch. In addition to building the two branches, Andrew designed and delivered a two-year transformation programme to completely reengineer their Enterprise Programme Management Office.

Andrew is a published author of 19 business books and holds a Master of Science Degree in Analysis, Design and Management of Information Systems from the London School of Economics and Political Science as well as a Post Graduate Diploma in Strategy & Innovation from Saïd Business School, University of Oxford.
